Chapter 1 by Lewis Peterson

Landon Larson peered over the edge of the thirty story building. At this moment it wasn't the height that scared him, it was the fall. His entire life had lead to this one moment. The last thing he wanted was for it to end, "especially while wearing this ridiculous costume!" As he spoke out loud his voice shook with anticipation. He looked down at his hands which held a red mask. His entire body was covered with a red suit made of some sort of elastic material. His suit held tight to his appendages, but his designs had allowed him to remain comfortable and did not make it hard for him to move his arms, legs or neck. His suit was composed of a black on red colour scheme with a white insignia on his chest. Within the suit was a sort of endo-skeleton made up of many strange technological parts and mechanical enhancements which, when he wore the suit, connected to his brain and other parts of his body. The suit held armour which would protect him from bullets to his chest and groin. And every single part of the suit was designed and put together by Landon Larson.

Chapter 2 by Lewis Peterson

Landon's mind took him back to his youth, when he had read the fantastic comic book stories with his father. He had asked Mr. Larson Sr. to read the same book almost every night. It was
